Time to get started

The winter dressage series has just ended (well done Nicola Robinson!) providing those with the desire and commitment, the opportunity to continue to compete during the Winter months. For the rest of us the end of Winter heralds the start of getting our horses fit and ready for the upcoming season ahead.

It's a great opportunity to take advantage of our sandy beaches and take in the scenery whilst getting yourself and your horse fit.

Like all professional athletes, it's worth getting advice on how to increase the overall fitness level of your horse safely. Establish your goals for the coming season and build the fitness level of your horse to meet your goal.

Last month we talked about setting goals and planning on how to achieve those goals. Goal setting isn't always about a competitive goal, it could be a personal goal for improving your riding, the fitness of your horse or a hurdle in behavior you want to work through and overcome.

Setting goals helps provide you with a long term vision of your plans and short term motivation to achieve them.

Remember to set realistic goals and write them positively. For example you might write "improve my riding technique and hand position" rather than "stop dropping my wrists down"

Each season provides us with a great opportunity to try something new and stretch our comfort zones. Be inspired at the great events taking place in this region, maybe even commit to being involved in NITE. Either way it's time to take stock, draw a deep breath and get started.

Happy reading....Sam

In detail

Show jumping is a relatively new equestrian sport. Until the 18th century, there had been little need for horses to jump fences routinely, but "The Inclosure Act" brought fencing and boundaries to many parts of the country as common ground was dispersed amongst wealthy landowners. This meant that those wishing to fox hunt now needed horses that were capable of jumping these obstacles.

In the early horse shows held in France, there was a parade of competitors who then took off across country for the jumping. This sport was, however, not popular with spectators as they could not follow to watch the jumping. Thus, it was not long before fences began to appear in an arena for the competitions. This became known as Lepping. By 1900 most of the more important shows had Lepping classes.

An Italian riding instructor, Captain Federico Caprilli, heavily influenced the world of jumping with his ideas promoting a forward position with shorter stirrups. This style placed the rider in a position that did not interfere with the balance of the horse while negotiating obstacles. This style, now known as the forward seat, is commonly used today.

The first major show jumping competition held in England was at Olympia in 1907. Most of the competitors were members of the military and it became clear at this competition and in the subsequent years, that there was no uniformity of rules for the sport. Judges marked on their own opinions. Some marked according to the severity of the obstacle and others marked according to style. Before 1907 there were no penalties for a refusal and the competitor was sometimes asked to miss the fence to please the spectators. The first courses were built with little imagination; many consisting of only a straight bar fence and a water jump.

A meeting was arranged in 1923 which led to the formation of the BSJA in 1925.

An early form of show jumping first was incorporated into the Olympic Games in 1900. Show jumping in its current format appeared in 1912, and has thrived ever since, its recent popularity due in part to its suitability as a spectator sport which is well adapted for viewing on television.

Out and about

A lovely evening of water colour painting and drawing took place on 18th July at Nicki Robinson's. Under the tutelage of Melda Gibson those who came along, produced some fantastic results.

Thanks to Melda and Nicola.

Well done to all the budding artists!

4 riders turned out for the KRC beach ride. It was a very leisurely affair as all the horses were just coming back into work. The weather was kind and it was a fabulous outing down Sims Road, along the beach and back to Te Horo beach road.

Hope to see more of you out and about on our next ride; QEP—18th August

WANTED!

Pony Tales Riding school in Reikorangi are looking for lovely ponies!

We are needing an approx. I2 hander and a I4 hander. We would prefer a good doer, and a gelding, but mares are OK if they are not too 'mareish'. They will need to be quiet to handle as children will be dealing with them on the ground. They also need to be more "whoa" than "go"! If anyone knows of any ponies that could be suitable please e-mail Cathy Devenport Cathyandcraig@xtra.co.nz

A fantastic home will be assured. Buy or lease considered

VESTS

KRC vests and shirts are now being considered for order.

If you are interested in ordering a shirt or vest, please e-mail Nicki Robinson; nickrobinson@xtra.co.nz

This really is the FINAL WORD!!!

We urgently need raffle prizes...

Anything suitable for a gift basket would be greatly appreciated.

Please drop them off to Nicky Robinson—Waikanae Cathy Devenport—Otaihanga Sandra de Ruiter—Te Horo

Needed by MONDAY 19th August

THANK YOU:)
